

Simple plans for real event nights — not per player, not per host.

TEMPO is built for indie hosts, venue groups, and entertainment orgs who want music bingo that looks premium in the room and stays predictable on the books. You pay for the nights you run — with room to grow as your calendar fills up.

One organization. One subscription. Unlimited hosts and players on every event. Your team can run paper cards, digital play, or both — with a projector-ready display that makes the night feel like a show. Pricing scales when you book more event nights, not when the room gets packed.

WHAT COUNTS AS AN EVENT?

One event credit covers one activated event night — up to twelve rounds in the same room, whether you run a single long game or a full multi-round residency-style lineup.

- Activate when you are ready to print room-ready materials or go live.
- Running two venues the same evening? Each room uses its own credit — simple and fair.
- Plan ahead for free: round buckets, patterns, playlists, and a one-card preview PDF.

WHY OPERATORS LOVE IT

- Packed rooms feel like upside — not a billing surprise.
- Add hosts without rebuying seats every time the roster changes.
- Brand the night your way; TEMPO stays behind the scenes as the engine.
- Spotify and YouTube Music workflows hosts already know.
- Print beautiful cards, run phones in the room, or mix both.

Try before you commit. Start with a 7-day trial for $29 — unlimited event nights while you explore. When you subscribe to Basic or higher, that $29 applies to your first invoice (monthly or annual). No gotchas on headcount.

WHEN YOU NEED ONE MORE NIGHT

- Extra event — $15 Add a single event credit when your month is full and the room is booked.
- Event packs (Basic+ only) Buy ahead and save: 5 for $60 · 10 for $100 · 25 for $200.
- Packs require an active Basic (or higher) subscription — perfect for seasonal spikes, not a substitute for a plan.
- At zero credits, TEMPO pauses live activation until you upgrade, add $15, or apply a pack.

Growing orgs stay in control. Monthly credits match how you sell. Rollover cushions a slow week. Packs cover the busy month. Enterprise removes the ceiling for teams running events at scale — same great product, no activation limits.

CREDITS & ROLLOVER — QUICK REFERENCE

TOPIC	HOW IT WORKS
Consumption order	Monthly plan credits first → rollover credits (oldest first) → pack inventory → block with upgrade options.
Rollover	Up to 3 unused monthly events roll forward. They expire after 1 month and apply only while your subscription is active.
Event window	An activated event stays open for up to 36 hours or until you end it — enough time for afternoon prep and evening showtime.
Accidental activation	If a show never really started (≤3 songs, no players, no full PDF printed), the credit can auto-refund. Printed materials mean the night was delivered — no refund.
Enterprise	Unlimited activations. Same workflow and reporting — no per-event billing.

TEMPO turns music bingo into a signature night — with pricing you can explain in one sentence.

One event credit = one activated night, up to twelve rounds, unlimited hosts and players. Start with a $29 trial, subscribe when the room loves it, and scale your plan as the calendar fills.

Ready to pitch? “TEMPO gives you unlimited hosts and players, a premium projector experience, and paper-or-digital play — you only pay for the event nights you run.” That is the whole story. Simple to say yes today. Polished enough to feel premium tonight.

How TEMPO stacks up against other music bingo platforms.

Competitors price in different shapes — flat unlimited, per-player seats, or per-show passes. TEMPO is built for operators who want predictable event-night billing, unlimited players, and room to run multiple venues without seat math.

*Where competitors advertise "unlimited games," caps often still apply to concurrent events, playlist libraries, or seat counts — read their terms. Competitor prices from public sites; verify before quoting clients.

Scenario A · 4 nights / month, ~80 players

TEMPO Basic: $59 — full room, no seat upgrade.
Rockstar @ 80 seats: ~$240/mo ($3 × 80).
Hitmix / Jindo: $22-30 flat unlimited.
Mixtape: $49/mo (player cap ~140).

Scenario B · One big night, 120 players

TEMPO: 1 event credit (~$12-15 effective on Basic).
Rockstar: ~$330+/mo tier for 120 seats.
Singo: $55 pay-per-show.
Flat-unlimited subs: full month to host once.

Scenario C · Two venues, same Saturday

TEMPO: 2 credits — both rooms live.
Rockstar: cannot run two games simultaneously.
Seat-based tools: buy headroom you may not use.
TEMPO org: one bill, unlimited hosts.

Where TEMPO wins the conversation

No per-player math when the room fills up. No rebuying host seats as your roster grows. Up to twelve rounds count as one event night. Paper cards, phones, and a projector-ready display in one platform — priced for how venues actually book, not how many phones join Wi-Fi.

WHEN FLAT UNLIMITED FITS BETTER

If you run music bingo almost every night, a flat $22-49 unlimited tool can look cheaper on paper. TEMPO is the better fit when you want org-scale billing, packed rooms without seat tiers, multi-room Saturdays, and a premium in-room display — plus rollover and packs when the calendar spikes.

The pitch in one line: “Other platforms tax you for every player or lock you to one room. TEMPO charges for the nights you run — unlimited hosts and players, up to twelve rounds a night, and you can scale from a $29 trial to Enterprise without changing how your team works.”
